

White House Consider Banning Imports of Canadian Motorbikes

The White House said it would ban imports of Canadian motorbikes and a slew of other products starting later this month as diplomatic and trade relations with Ottawa continue to fray. U.S. President Donald Trump used a string of executive orders late Monday to announce bans on Canadian whey products and molasses, non-alcoholic beer, and a slew of alcoholic drinks including malt beer, wines, cider, whiskies, vodka, and other spirits. Larger-capacity motorcycles and mopeds will also be banned. Canada earlier this week stated that it brought in what it called “dollar for dollar” retaliatory tariffs on CA$27.6 billion of U.S. imports, targeting hundreds of products including furniture, household appliances, beauty products, clothing, agricultural equipment and more.
